If these 38 women, seven intend to stimus the study of law. The others it it up merely as a pastime or for the se of getting as lakes of what the mearer niways talking about. The young-women in the class is Miss Minns aton Dyke, who is only 19. The otherange from 30 to 50 years of age. There were many fashicashle people embled in the little hall. cholarship in the law school was to be warded to the woman who had passed be best final examination. Of course one of the ladies cared. They chatted mong themselves with great animation o show one another that they wouldn't se at all disappointed if they didn't get the prize, but when the moment drew car there was a great deal of nervousess upon that platform. Chanceller lacCrucken made a short address, to thick not a single member of the class and the slightest attention. Then Processor Russell spoke, and the eyes beamed upon his face and followed each movement of his lips.

apon his face and followed each movement of his lips.

"We cannot claim for these ladies," he said, "that they are largely learned in the law. The honors they receive to night do not amount to an academic degree of doctor, master or bachelor. We simply certify that for four months they have studied faithfully and successfully. The relation of this work to the full course of professional study looking to the degree of L.L. B. is indicated by the fact that we offer a prise scholarship afforcing free tuition for two years in the university law school to the candidate passing the best final emmination. So it cannot, we think, be asserted that we are lacking in modesty.

"I have been profoundly impressed by the delighted exclamations of ladies who the delighted exclamations of ladies who learn that all the busy industries of man and all the relations of civil and domestic life are under the regulation and control of law. We consider it demonstrated by our own experience that ladies can be induced to listen with intelligent interest to lectures on law and to read legal works with seal and painstaking care. To many, like the speaker, this truth has come like a revelation."

When Chancellor MacCracken arose to award the scholarship prize, some of the women turned pale, some smiled a very feverish kind of a smile, while others looked awfully solemn. Mrs. Lilly had worked hard the whole year with the hope of winning that prize, but the only indication there was to her feelings was a sudden finsh, succeeded by just as sudden a pallor.

"And the committee have found," the chancellor read, peering through his glasses, 'that Mrs. Laura Goddes Smith ghasse, "that Mrs. Laura Goddes Smith is entitled to honorable mention. The prize scholarship is awarded to Miss—Mrs.—Mary Marcella Lilly."

There was a burst of appliance that shook the little hall, and Mrs. Lilly arose, pale and trembling, to take the slip of paper from the chancellor's hand. Her sister, Miss Marguerite Maddern, ran across the platform and kissed her ran across the platform and kissed her and hugged her. It was bard to my who was the more to be envied. Miss Maddern did not go in for any prize. She is only 21 years old, and her thoughts soar above law prizes.

Mrs. Leonard Weber, the president of the Woman's Legal Educational society, made an address in which she appealed to the audience to contribute to the sup-pert of the society. It was through the efforts and the endowment of this society that the law class was established. Chancellor MacCracken then awarded the certificates.—New York Sun.

Royal Women to Spe

The beautiful Queen Amelia of Portugal, who has been called to Seville by the serious illness of her grandmother, the Duchess of Montpensier, appears to have turned the Spaniards' heads. When-ever the queen appears in the streets, she is followed by a big growd of men who after the most extravagant remarks respecting her beauty and grace.

Twice upon one day, it is stated, Andainsian gallants throw their rich closks upon the muddy ground to save the royal shoes from being soiled, in studied or meconscious inditation of Sir Walter Rainigh and Quoen Elimboth. That the royal beauty thoroughly enjoys her daily triumph is beyond doubt. She walks about the streets attended by only one issly of her suite, which in itself is a most unusual violation of the rigid sti-quette of Spanish and Fortuguese courts, and she bores and smiles in acknowledgement of the most fautastic compliments, whother attered by peer or peasant, for the daily crowds compose men in all ranks of life. It is expisited that the homoge paid to Queen Amelia is merely characteristic of Amelianasa and has nothing offensive about it. The explanation can scarcely be estimatory to the Queen Report Christina, who, although a most excession woman, can not yet encessful in profling one spark of enthusiasm among the Spaniscula.—Boston Transcript.

The laws of Louisiana, so they affect Holid train with dining our attached to necessity states of water, would leave Chicago, Twelfth Street station, ly, it means that the laws tright be re-lated a little, so that a woman may be able to hold the clothes on her buck against any third in the city without busing up the foundations of the state's jurispensiones and utterly destroying the majesty of the law. When this same law operates to strip a woman of her garments and hands them over to a third, the robus of his amjusty are decidedly threadbare."

Accounts of the Hanne Hartises.
Accounts of the recent municipal elections throughout Hannes have been followed with interest by women from Maine to Mexico. For the first time in history women have demonstrated their wish to exercise freely the highest privilege of cittzenship. They visited the polls in numbers nearly equal to the men, voted independently and effectively and elective established their determination to be recognized as important political factors in their several neighborhoods. Of course the conservative south and east hold somewhat different views from the more liberally advanced west. The body of women in this part of the country rather fear and despise radical movements.

ly rejoiced over the social results of the experiment. No matter what her convictions might be, it galled her pride to hear men gibe at the hysterical exhibitions of imaginary women at the polla. Hair pulling, cat scratching voters were creatures of their fancy. Therefore, if the quiet, intelligent use of the feminine franchise in Eassas has no other effect, it has been useful in proving the discreet dignity of the American woman under any and all circumstances.—American Woman.

And all this time the only indication in our community that there is a great exhibition going on at Chicago, is that, yesterday, we missed Fred Ball; today, Leo Fisher; tomorrow Smith will be gone, and Jones the next day. The world moves just the same. We have never thought, with many of our contemporaries, that the World's Fair—great us it is would occasion any perceptible ripple in human affairs, especially as applied to the Northern Resorts of Michigan; and the engagements for space, the numerous inquiries as to the starting of summer trains, of sleeping-cars, parior-cars, etc. confirm the reasonableness of our idea. More than one third of the population of the United States is under 15 years of age, and they have to grow and be looked after right along. We can't pack them in cold storage or moth proof places; suspend their existence; biot them from our hearts, and slip over to the Fair. We go to the Fair though. Ohl yes, we must go. But the Fair is, after all, nothing more than an incident; like in proportionate impressiveness to the great world as is the blushing one-ring circus to the inland village. And so, we have been arranging, with our usual care, the summer service to the summer resorts, and it will commence Monday, the 26th. Those destined for Bay View, Petoskey, Charlevoix, Traverse City, and all contiguous resorts, may choose. Parior

Traverse City will also have the regular evening train, leaving here at 5:45 p. m. It's worth trying our line, when you go up this time, to see the beautiful natural scenery between Traverse City and Bay View, while the recently completed gardens at Charlevoix and Petoskey are worth going more miles to look at than even Katisha's elbow. The schedule is very good, the accommodations superior, and the track even better than last season. Ggo. DeHaven, Gen'l Pass. Agent.
